

Stichting Asian Heritage Nepal (SAHN), Newsflash 12th of May 2015

Second major earthquake

This morning Nepal has been hit again by an earthquake with a magnitude of 7.3 This was followed by several aftershocks with a magnitude beyond 5. The quake was centred around Mount Everest and therewith in the region of Necha. At this stage we don't know the extent of the damage in Necha.

Luckily enough, Nilam, his family and the staff of Asian Heritage Treks & Expedition are unharmed. And even in this condition Nilam did not loose his positive attitude to life.

"Respected all dearest and nearest friends, Lucky we all, the Asian Heritage Team, me and my family and these of my close friends and relatives, are alright. Tonight, once again, we will sleep out sight in the open ground. Our roof is crystal clear and we can watch all the stars... That is very nice, but also very safe. By all means it is better than sleeping in our house. I hope the earthquake is getting over now from Nepal. Let's hope the best..."

Meanwhile in the Netherlands...

We have received many enthusiastic reactions within the first weeks after the first earthquake. People from everywhere are thinking with us or try to collect some money through fundraising. Heartwarming! At the facebooksite of SAHN you will find the most current information. At this site you can also read at which way Nilam considers the requests for help. The positive response as well from the Netherlands as from other countries strengthens Nilam and his team in fulfilling their duties. Therefore we hope that we can also count on your benefit for the next period of time.
